A My kind of dream

Most young people have some kind of dream about their future.

Some dream of becoming famous sports stars: football players, swimmers, runners, etc.

Others dream of a musical career as singers, players, etc.

Some dream of a career within fashion as designers, models, etc.

Others wish to become writers, actors, dancers, etc.

Some people have a dream of making the world a better place to live in.

They may want to be doctors, nurses, social workers, politicians, missionaries, etc.

What is your dream for the future?

B The place where I live

Read what four young people say about the place that they live in.

Think about your own area.

How is it to live there?

Liverpool:

Where I live a lot of people are unemployed. Many young people have never had a job and have no prospect of ever getting one.

My dad lost his job five years ago and has given up all hope of ever working again.

Even so, I love Liverpool.

I was born here, and I have lots of friends. But I know that if I want to get a job, I will probably have to move down south.

Wales:

We moved here three years ago after my parents split up, and my mum married a man from this area. Now we have a small farm and are hoping to become self-sufficient in food and clothes.

It was hard making new friends at first, especially because I didn't understand Welsh, and I missed my old school.

But now I love living here and have lots of friends.

The Highlands:

I love outdoor life.

The Scottish Highlands are beautiful all year round. In winter I go cross-country skiing, and in summer I go ponytrekking or hill climbing.

I love music too; so do most of the people in this area. We often have evenings of folk dancing and singing.

And then there are the Highland Games every summer, I couldn't imagine living anywhere else.

London:

I was born in Malta but I grew up in London where I have lived for the past 14 years. I enjoy life in a big city, but I wouldn't like to live here forever. I don't want my own children growing up here. It's too crowded and noisy, and there's too much pollution. But right now the pace of life suits me and there are plenty of opportunities for having a good time.

What you have to write:

Describe the place that you live in, mentioning important activities, events or things that characterize it.

Include your feelings about it, and say whether you intend to stay there or move away.
