

Morgawr

Many people have actually seen Morgawr over the years. In 1876, two fishermen caught a sea serpent in their net. The creature was described as being 20 feet long with an eight foot tail.

In September 1975, Morgawr was spotted by a man and a woman out on a walk. They described a creature with a long neck, short horns and hair down its back.

Three years ago a man videotaped Morgawr. He believes that the creature could be a kind of dinosaur.

In fact, the most popular theory as to what Morgawr might be, is that it could be a plesiosaur.

Venjið serliga væl orðini, ið hava striku undir.

Orðini, ið eru skrivað við kursiv verða skrivað á talvuna.